Last week, the reputation of Big Oreek, which had been so good recently, was seriously injured by a desperate deed of blood at a marriage feast. It was not of blood at a marriage feast. It was not merely a row, but a regular death struggle, a murder, that rominds one of the making away of the boy one summer morning, by suspending him, with a clothes-line, to the limb of an iron-wood tree. A young boy in this case is the viotim also, only nineteen years old. His ghastly corpse was left lying upon the floor, where a wedding feast was in full swing but twenty minutes before. The murder took place on the Big Oreek Road, ten miles North of Memphis, in the Third Civil District, at the house of George Cooper, whose sister had just George Cooper, whose sister had just been married, and they were holding the usual blow-out and fandango. The company had partially dispersed, but a few gawky, half-fuddled young men remained about the premises. A quarrel commenced between Hill and Cooper, about the young woman that had just been married. A stout blacksmith of the name of Bachman, the husband of the sister of Cooper, three or four hours married, poked his nose into the difficulty, and talked big and loud and bears. culty, and talked big and loud and beery. In two or three minutes, the quarrel raged flercely. What had been only a gentle breeze stormed up to a perfect hurricane, destructive in its violence. The fresh husband took the side of his beather in level for he had a no artists the side of the side of the state of the head and are the side of the side brother-in-law, for he had an antipathy brother-in-law, for he had an antipathy for Hill anyhow, for Hill was an admirer, so it is said, of Cooper's sister, Bachman's wife. Cooper and Bachman fell upon Hill with daggers and pistols, and slew him. His body showed four mortal stabs and two shot wounds, any one of which would produce death in the ordinary animated human corpus. The murderers immediately escaped—the brother deserting the newly-married sister, and the bridgeroom forsaking his sister, and the bridegroom forsaking his bride of a few hours, their hands reeking with the warm blood of a murdered boy, shed upon the threshold of the house where peace and joy ought to reign. Bashman is a young German, blacksmith by trade, twenty-seven years old and six feet high, heavy build, dark complexion. His parents reside in Cincinnati. Cooper is a native, about twenty-five years old, light build, fair complexion, heavy eyebrows - the very antipodes of Bachman, as it were. The citizens of the neighborhood want to have these fellows arrested and punished. IF YOU FEEL dull, despondent, drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headaches, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver, or "Biliousness." Nothing will cure you so speedily and perma-nently as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. "CAN'T DO WITHOUT IT."-This is what the stage and horse-car companies, livery-stable keepers, members of the turf, and all grooms and trainers say of the MUSTANG LINIMENT. They "can't do without it." And why? Because it infallibly reduces the external swellings, &c., which, under various names, impair co., which, under various names, impair the seefulness and value of the king of quadrupeds, and also because, for sprains, strains, galls and other injuries to which horse flesh is liable, it is the most trustworthy preparation in the market. Yet these recommendations comprise only a portion of its claims to public confidence.

During a period of more then sixteen During a period of more than sixteen years, it has been recognized as a specific for many of the most agonizing disor-ders which afflict the human family such as rheumatism, gout, neuralgia, lumbago, ticdoloreux, sore throat, earache, tooth-ache; and, likewise, as a peerless application for cuts, bruises, burns and soalds.

Dr. W. H. Turr: It affords me much pleasure to testify to the great value of your Liver Pills. They are all they are represented to be. In my opinion, there are no pills so well adapted in the Southern climate as they are. Yours truly,
